

In the prelude to and during the Battle for Iraq, our media gave us ONE point of view, the embedded view of our military and the federal government, especially the President and his Secretary of Defense. In a democratic society, we need to hear multiple perspectives on the issues of the day. Consolidating media power in a few hands will be a disaster for democracy. We need a diverse, balanced and competitive media.